Never in the history of the Junction City has there been such a political demonstration as there was last night. Around the stage were prominent Democrats from Ogden, Weber county outside, Logan, Davis and Salt Lake. In the front seats were the Democratic orators and organizers. In the center overhead was a huge ball of bunting and flags, and radiating in every direction were streamers of bunting caught up gracefully and forming a very pleasure.

Separation of Church and State.

The constitution provides for the separation of church and state. One of the great obstacles which has kept us from statehood was the fear of church domination. That constitution was signed in the most solemn manner, and I charge you to vote on it in a similar manner. The church should not interfere with the state nor the state with the church. I favor the greatest possible encouragement to the public school system. I favor the encouragement of the Agricultural College of Utah. The United States government has been more than liberal to us in the donation of land for educational purposes. The quantity of land amounts to about $,000,000 acres. It is hard to comprehend how much that is EATH BEFORE DISHONOR.

As to Taxes.

Some of our friends are afraid of higher taxes when statehood comes. I think this is needless. We expect when the Democrats get control that economy will prevail.

A great deal has been said about the opening of the Uintah and Uncompaligre reservations, and the estimable young gentleman who is trying to get the seat which I expect to occupy myself, asks if the commissioners were doing anything except drawing their salary. I don't care much if they are not. I don't care if they don't open it till Utah is a state.

care if they don't open it till Utah is a state.

It is important to send the right kind of men to the legislature. It will have to provide a system of laws. I think those laws should be clear and comprehensive, so that they can be interpreted without the aid of a lawyer. This may be hard on the lawyers, but I am speaking for the whole people. There are various institutions in our midst that ought to be looked after. Among these is the citizen soldlery. I favor extending every encouragement to the boys of the National Guard, and the bands of music associated with them.

He said he looked upon political meetings as solemn occasions, when a free people met to consider great principles of government. They also assemble to choose, not their masters, not their rulers, for the people are the zovereigns. The people had assembled to consider principles and men. He was there to present the Democratic side. We come with all the splendid traditions of the past, sanctified because of the difficulties through which they have brought us. The Democratic party still contends for freedom, contending that each man is emitted to full liberty except where it interferes with the liberty of other men. They are still saying the powers not granted to the general government have no existence. We are still saying that the nation must not invade the sovereignty of the several states. It is an indissoluble union, made up of indestructible states. The line must be preserved if we would bequeath liberty to our posterity. The Democracy still says taxes must be limited to the expense of government and it is robbery to use the taxing power for private ends. It still declares there must be equal justice to all, special privileges to none.

Party of Young Men.

Party of Young Men.

It is still the party of the people, the party for our young men. This may astendish the Republicana. They claim to have the party for young men. They say the Democrats are strong in negation, always saying "Don't! Don't!!" There is more or less truth in this. Suppose some of you, when you return home, should discover some progressive fellow had entered your house and was making off with your valuables and you should say "Don't. Don't. That is my property." Suppose he should say "I am the party of progress, you are the party of negation. I will take this off and pay high wages." (Cheers) The Republicans would use the taxing power to take from the whole people to aid some private persons. The Democrats say "Holl oh. You have no right to do this." And to tell the truth the Republicans have kept us busy saying don't.

They claim to be the party of the young the Republicans have kept us busy saying don't.

They claim to be the party of the young men. I deny that. The young men will follow the best and not the worst in the state. Do the people admire those old states wherein some men ruled and the young men, to gain fayor, were compelled to crook their knees to obtain favors and the recognition which is their due? Do you rather not admire the man who cries out holdly. 'Give me a good government with no favor and I will carve the fortune which my powers entitle me to!' The best government is that which keeps men from injuring one another and lets them go free in their own pursuits. The party which is best for the young men is that which guarantees absolute freedom and equality. After all a nation's wealth is reckoned in its people not in its gold. (Cheers.)

The Golden Ern.

If time would permit a critical examination of these principles. If we could examine closely, we could demonstrate clearly what principles should prevail. When men wish to point to the golden era of American prosperity they call attention to the years from 18% to 1890. I would not fear to challenge comparison with any era of boasted Republican prosperity.

prosperity.

We had not so many millionaires and we had no tramps. It is possible that the young womanhood of the rich classes could not pay so much for a worn out duke. (Cheers.) ike. (Cheers.) There were fewer farms with mortgages, there was more genuine peace and pros-perity in those days and I am happy to say that a comparison will bring about a complete vindication of Democratic prin-ciples. The reason that a disturbance of the parity of our coin and currency was threatened is found in the fact that Cleveland and Carlisle used the gold pledged exclusively for the redemption of United States notes to make good revenue difficulties caused by the Wilson-Gorman-Brice tariff law.
